

Driver Found Guilty Of Involuntary Manslaughter

Jury Requests Leniency For R. J. Barry

RAYMOND Joseph Barry, 34, of Philadelphia yesterday was found guilty of involuntary manslaughter in the highway deaths of five college students last January. The jury recommended leniency.

Atty. Michael Von Mosehisker of Philadelphia, representing Barry with Atty. Arlington Williams of Stroudsburg, immediately moved for a new trial.

Judge Fred W. Davis permitted Barry to remain at liberty on $3,000 bail until written request for the new trial is filed. Barry has been free on $1,500 bail pending trial.

The jury, composed of eight men and four women, deliberated an hour and 42 minutes after receiving the case at 3:19 p.m.

At Von Mosehisker's request, the jury was polled with each member repeating the verdict.

Members of the jury were Dale H. Lamm, who acted as foreman, Grace E. Hamlin, Josephine McDowell, Llewellyn Andrew, James N. Hawk, Irene Smith, Lawrence D. Smaile, Charles E. Heintze, Morton W. Freeland, Sula Keller, Giles H. Burlingame and William F. Smaile.

The charges against Barry resulted from the deaths of Demetrius Spross-Marinov, 19, and McClellan P. Whittenight, 18, both of Bloomsburg; William J. Snyder, 20, Danville; Terry Hawk, 19, Nesquehanna; and Bernard Basch, 21, Berwick.

The youths, all students at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, were returning from their mid-term vacation when the car in which they were riding collided with the Greyhound bus driven by Barry.

The accident occurred on Route 115, south of Blakeslee. Testimony during the two-day trial indicated that the highway was icy and fog-shrouded when the accident occurred about 1:15 p.m. on Jan. 29.

Spross-Marinov was identified as the driver of the automobile in which the five were riding.

When court convened yesterday morning, Dist. Atty. Detlef A. Hansen announced he had completed examination of his witnesses.

The morning session was devoted to defense witnesses — including the defendant — and summaries by prosecution and defense lawyers.

Review

Judge Davis reviewed the law relating to involuntary manslaughter and instructed the jury as the afternoon session opened.

Summarizing the case for the defendant, Von Mosehisker, described the crash as an "overwhelming tragedy," but told the jury they must "consider this evidence with your minds, not your hearts."

Von Mosehisker said the question was not whether Barry made a mistake in judgment.

He said the jury could not return a guilty verdict, "unless you're convinced he acted with utter, willful, wanton disregard for persons on that highway."

He said testimony of witnesses showed that Barry had trailed three cars for approximately 10 or 15 minutes awaiting an opportunity to pass them. "If he were wilfully disregarding the safety of others, he wouldn't have waited 10 or 15 minutes," the defense attorney said.

In his summary, Hansen pointed out that the involuntary manslaughter charge against Barry is a misdemeanor. He then reviewed testimony by the Commonwealth's witnesses.

He asked the jury to examine carefully photographs of the bus and the car to determine whether they crashed head-on or whether the bus was being swung back into its correct lane of traffic as Barry and Ronald J. Conkey of Upper Darby, another Greyhound driver, testified.

Conkey, riding as a passenger in the bus, told the court he had driven buses over the same route and was familiar with it.

Answer

In answer to Von Mosehisker's question, "At any time did he (Barry) drive too fast for conditions?" Conkey said "No, sir."

His testimony appeared directed at discrediting first day testimony by Miss Jean S. Zelter of Drexel Hill, also a passenger on the bus.

Miss Zelter testified that she was "concerned" during the trip because she felt the driver was going too fast considering the condition of the highway.

Another point of conflict arose when Barry told the court under direct examination "He definitely did not have a light (Please Turn To Page Five)

Eisenhower Lashes Out At 'Mob Rule'

AFL-CIO Levels Charge At Union

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP)—The AFL-CIO Executive Council late today found the United Textile Workers of America under corrupt influence and gave the union 30 days to clean up.

The Council's announcement came after a day-long meeting during which the labor organization's top governing body had studied a report from the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee condemning financial practices in the textile union.

The accused textile union is distinct from the Textile Workers Union of America, once in the CIO. It is one of three unions under corruption charges by the Ethical Practices Committee after disclosures of financial irregularities by a Senate committee.

Others

The other unions, the Teamsters and Bakery Workers, also are expected to get clean-up orders from the Executive Council, which is meeting in extraordinary session to pass on the Ethical Practices Committee's reports.

The Council said action on the Teamsters and Bakers would not come before tomorrow.

The Council's announcement on the textile workers said it "finds and concludes" that the union is "dominated, controlled or substantially influenced in the conduct of its affairs by corrupt influences, in violation of the constitution of the AFL-CIO."

The union was ordered "to correct the abuses set forth in the report of the Ethical Practices Committee and to eliminate corrupt influences from the union and remove and bar from any position of office, either appointive or elective, in the international union, or in any of its subordinate bodies, those who are responsible for these abuses."

U.S. Repeats Stand To Back Peace

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—The United States today reaffirmed its determination to preserve peace in the Middle East and joined Britain and France in denouncing Russia for inflaming hatreds there.

The State Department made public a diplomatic note, couched in blunt language, handed today to the Soviet Foreign Ministry in Moscow.

It said similar notes were delivered by the French and British.

Exchange

They were the latest in an exchange touched off Feb. 11 when Russia called for a Big Four declaration condemning use of force in the Middle East.

The American note pinned on Russia "primary responsibility for the present aggravation of tension in the Middle East."

It said Russia arms shipments started "a chain of events" and "inflammatory Soviet statements and propaganda" have thwarted all efforts to relax tensions and solve Mideast problems.

Citing the congressionally approved resolution pledging military support if requested by any victim of Communist aggression in the Middle East, the American note declared: "There shall be no doubt that the government of the United States intends to carry out the national policy set forth in this resolution."

Something New In Court

TAMPA, Fla., Sept. 24 (AP)—Criminal Court opened today with this unusual pronouncement by the bailiff:

"God save the United States of America, the State of Arkansas and this honorable court."

Judge L. A. Grayson, a supporter of segregated schools, said he had Arkansas included in the opening words because President Eisenhower "kicked Arkansas out of the Union."

Inspectors In Mine

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 24 (AP)—Mine inspectors and a mine rescue team today probed the depths of the Bethlehem Steel Company's Marianna mine where an explosion killed five miners and burned six others yesterday.

Community Chest Gives 'Early Start' To Drive

MONROE County's 1957 Community Chest campaign got officially off to an "early start" yesterday morning bright and early with an 8:30 a.m. breakfast at the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

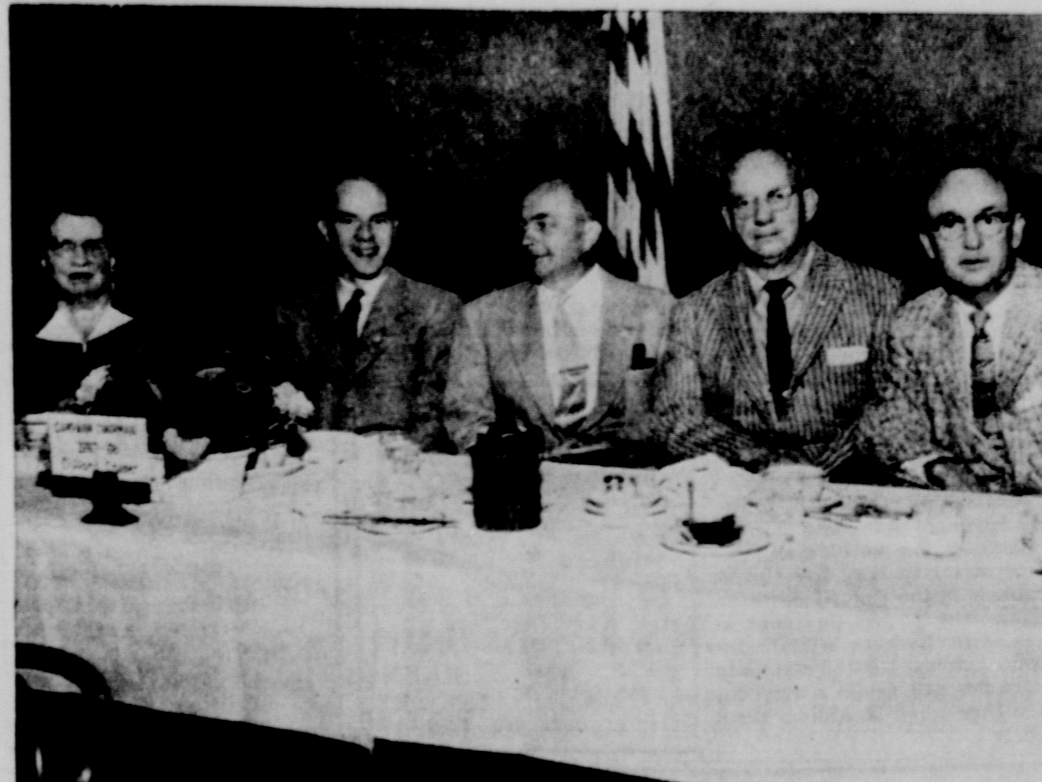

Attending were leaders and division workers for trades, public service, industrial and professional categories. M. S. Baldwin, president in the absence of Holt Wyckoff, Chest president, and introduced Clifford Cramer, campaign chairman.

Cramer welcomed chairman and workers and introduced these division heads: James Somers and Charles Marsh, Stroudsburg trade; William Gorton, Emerson Stanton and Paul Dellaria, Industrial; Hanford Cleveland and Martin Ellsweig, East Stroudsburg trade; Chester Miller, public service; Nelson Westbrook, professional.

Others in attendance included John F. Hill, editor of The Daily Record and Mrs. Ethel West, Chest secretary.

Speakers

Main speakers were S. Clair Smith, budget committee chairman for the Chest and Jesse R. S. Flory, one of the organizers of the original Chest in 1942

Distributed to leaders and workers were two pamphlets. One is titled "How to Raise Money" and the second is called "People Need Help." The slogan for this year's Chest drive will be "Go All the Way with One Day's Pay," it was announced.

Boy and Girl Scouts will distribute the pamphlets on "People Need Help" from door to door. Scouts will not make solicitation for funds, however. The pamphlets are designed purely for public information.

Report meetings for the various divisions represented were set for Oct. 2 and 9 at 4 p.m. at the Penn-Stroud. The kick-off dinner for the Chest will be held on Oct. 14 at the hotel. Chest leaders hope to reach 100 per cent of goal in the early divisions by then.

Burgess Jesse S. Flory of East Stroudsburg, who was one of the founders of the Chest in 1942, reviewed the services performed by each of the 12 member agencies and by the Chest itself.

"We must rededicate ourselves to the time-tested principles of the Chest and remind ourselves that its spirit is to help people in need," Flory declared. "The Chest is not on trial during this campaign, but rather we as individuals are being tested on the amount we give and the effort we put into the drive."

The regulars came from the 101st Airborne Division, stationed at Ft. Campbell, Ky. They planned to report at Arkansas district military headquarters not far from the business district.

President Eisenhower took decisive action after racial violence and riots swept small parts of the city yesterday and last night.

The President federalized the Arkansas National Guard and the State Air National Guard.

Control

His action placed the 9,000 guardsmen under Army control and took them out of state control.

Gov. Orval Faubus, until today the civilian commander of the guard, first called up these troops Sept. 2 to, as he said, prevent violence. His orders also were to prevent Negroes from entering Central High School, focal point to the trouble.

Violence erupted yesterday when eight or nine Negro students walked into Central High while a mob estimated as high as 1,000 was diverted by four Negro adults. They were withdrawn a few hours later when police felt the crowd might become uncontrollable.

The school said eight attended yesterday. Negro sources said there were nine.

Citizens of this Southern metropolis reacted with shock, surprise, and in some cases elation to the President's order.

'Frieda' Moving Northeast

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—The tropical storm Frieda was reported late today to be about 450 miles east of Wilmington, N.C., and moving northeast at the rate of 20 miles an hour.

It had earlier been dismissed as offering no threat to the U.S. coast.

Army Flies 500 Soldiers To Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 24 (AP)—Paratroopers from the famed 101st Airborne Division took up stations around Central High School tonight while hundreds of Little Rock people looked on.

There was no immediate reaction from the crowd.

The troops rolled in convoy from Little Rock Air Force Base shortly after dark.

The force, said to be 500, split—one group going to the high school and the other to the National Guard at Little Rock.

Warfare Look

The high school's handsome, stone facade was lighted and the lights from the jeeps and the 24-ton trucks, carrying the paratroopers, gave the scene almost a wartime look.

A number of Negro paratroopers were seen in the trucks.

However, it appeared that they were being assigned to duty away from the high school.

As the units assigned to the armory drove away, it appeared that most of the Negroes went in those trucks.

A trailer, marked "explosives," and a weapons carrier came with the paratroopers.

Battalion pennons fluttered from short standards attached to the jeeps.

The paratroopers wore battle dress.

Col. William A. Kuehn, commander of the troops at the high school, conferred with Asst. Police Chief Gene Smith about troop arrangements for tonight. Smith told the officer that the school gymnasium had showers for the men. It appeared that the troops might bed down tonight on the school's football field.

The soldiers themselves brushed aside all questions, referring newsmen to their officers.

Planes earlier had flown them here.

The planes loaded with soldiers landed at midafternoon at Little Rock Air Force Base. An officer called City Hall asked for and got permission to enter the city and for a police escort to handle the traffic.

"If federal troops are there, to protect the children, the Negro children will go to school tomorrow," said Mrs. L. C. Bates, NAACP state leader.

The regulars came from the 101st Airborne Division, stationed at Ft. Campbell, Ky. They planned to report at Arkansas district military headquarters not far from the business district.

TV, Radio Talk Warns Of Perils Confronting U.S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—President Eisenhower, telling the nation why he sped federal troops to Little Rock, said tonight that "mob rule" there menaced the very safety of the United States and the free world.

That is so, he said in a TV-radio broadcast from the White House, because "gloating" Communists abroad are using the school integration riots to misrepresent the United States, and undermine its prestige and influence around the globe.

Solemnly, he called upon Arkansas citizens to help bring an end to all interference with legal processes, because:

"Mob rule cannot be allowed to override the decisions of the courts."

Entering

Even as he spoke, the first of 500 troops of the 101st Airborne Division were entering Little Rock, but the President pledged:

"If resistance to the federal court orders ceases at once, the further presence of federal troops will be unnecessary. . . ."

The President stressed that the troops were not sent to relieve local authorities of their duty to preserve order, nor to act as school administrators. Their only purpose, he said, is to prevent further interference with a federal judge's order that Negroes be admitted to Little Rock's Central High School.

The President, looking deadly serious, said he chose the White House for his address to the nation because:

"I felt that, in speaking from the house of Lincoln, of Jackson and of Wilson, my words would more clearly convey both the sadness I feel in the action I was compelled today to take and the firmness with which I intend to pursue this course."

He said he knew that an overwhelming majority of Americans—including those of Little Rock—are people of goodwill, but that some few in the Arkansas capital were bent on obstructing justice.

In this country, Eisenhower said, the basis of individual rights and freedoms is the certainty that the executive branch will insure the carrying out of federal court decisions with all the means at the president's command, when necessary.

Reasoning

"Unless the president did so, anarchy would result," he said. The President, dressed in a light gray suit and "television blue" shirt, appeared to be completely at ease, even though he built up emphasis on several points.

On two occasions, he whipped off his glasses to ad lib a line. Once, he said that the running of school systems is a matter for local authorities, and the federal government doesn't interfere unless asked.

At another spot, where he said the Little Rock School Board had approved a moderate plan for gradual desegregation, Eisenhower remarked that schools in a number of Arkansas communities have been integrated without violence of any kind.

Rustine served the company for two years and was one of the founders of the organization.

The recommendation describes him as "very instrumental" in construction of the fire house. He also assisted in building the practice fire tower at East Stroudsburg.

The company's citation of him for the honor said he is "always willing to do anything that is for the betterment of the fire service." He has attended several fire schools. A three-man panel will decide the winner of the contest after receipt of entries from all 17 volunteer fire departments in the county.

Billy Graham Makes Appeal To Ministers

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP)—Billy Graham today urged New York City's Protestant ministers to "rededicate your lives to Christ" for a citywide, person-to-person evangelism drive—and hundreds of them promised to do it.

"This can be the greatest mission in the history of the church," Graham told a gathering of most of the city's Protestant clergymen—about 1,500 of them. The drive is planned as a follow-up to Graham's huge, summer-long crusade here.

In a dramatic moment at the conclusion of his address, Graham made the same appeal to the ministers that he has to millions of lay listeners. This was that they "give their lives afresh to the 'Savior' to meet 'the challenge of the hour.'"

"Let's give it everything we've got," Graham said. "For some ministers to orient their thinking and their programs will take tremendous courage. How many have that courage? How many will say by the grave of God, I want to rededicate my life to Christ?"

It looked as if nearly every hand in the grand ballroom of the Sheraton-Astor Hotel went up, Graham added: "It certainly includes the speaker."

Waring To Play For Queen

FRED WARING and his Pennsylvanians will give a "Command Performance" before Queen Elizabeth, The Daily Record learned yesterday.

It will take place Oct. 17 in Washington. The Waring singers will be presented as the primary example of American choral music at its finest.

Although no official comment could be secured from Washington yesterday concerning the special concert by the Waring group, this newspaper was told by an unimpeachable source that such an appearance had been arranged. No comments were available from anyone within the Waring organization, and a spokesman for that group said that announcement of the concert "should be made by Washington."

Rehearsal

The Fred Waring organization is now in rehearsal in New York City for its Autumn tour of the nation. Members of the chorus and band will return to Shawnee at the end of the first week in October for further rehearsals.

Waring's music has long been a favorite with President and Mrs. Eisenhower. The group has provided music for most of the major Eisenhower rallies during past campaigns and has been called upon to sing for the President on numerous other occasions.

During the Summer the Fred Waring Show was telecast directly from Shawnee Inn on the Delaware.

Awards Made To Two Volunteers In Area

AWARDS FOR outstanding service to Crippled Children and Adults were presented to Monroe County volunteers yesterday by the Pennsylvania Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Inc. The awards were made at a luncheon meeting of the Monroe County Society held at the Penn Stroud Hotel.

Alex Bensinger, past president of the local society, for the time, service men and leadership he has given to its work, and Mrs. Harry Adams, who over a period of many years, has bought the material and made crocheted articles which she has turned over to Mrs. William Webb for sale, were those honored. The proceeds have averaged $100 a year and have been used for the help of handicapped.

The awards, in the form of pins bearing a small crutch surrounding a loving cup carrying the words, "Brace for an Ace", were presented by Russell McCann, field director for the northeastern region of the state society.

Speaker McCann, who was also the speaker at the luncheon, outlined the history of the national, state and local Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Inc., dedicated to helping the handicapped of all races and creeds, whether such handicap occurred at birth, through disease or accident.

Such help takes three forms he said:

- (1) Direct help to the patient through physical, mental and occupational therapy, or supplying equipment not available through other sources.
- (2) Education of the patient not only along physical but mental and emotional lines with a view to adjusting him to society, and society to the resources available through use of the handicapped.

(3) Research into the reasons for crippling which takes the form of grants to colleges and medical schools.

This program is carried on, McCann pointed out, through voluntary contributions in the Easter Seal campaigns. He also emphasized the need for continued support to provide increased therapy, facilities and an adult program in industry.

He praised the work of the Monroe County Society. In particular he gave the society credit for activating the physical therapy department at the General Hospital, providing needed equipment and paying the first six month salary of a physical therapist. The physical therapy department, now supported by the hospital, is an excellent one, he said.

WHEEL BALANCER — Belmont Bell, 89 Analomink St., East Stroudsburg, is shown above with his "Fluid Balance". He owns a patent on this invention which balances automobile wheels while the vehicle is in motion. It is mounted inside the hub cap or wheel cover.

East Borough Man Invents 'Balancer'

BELMONT BELL, 89 Analomink St., East Stroudsburg, currently owns a patent that someday may revolutionize the automobile industry.

The patent deals with an automatic wheel balancer, which Bell refers to as the "Fluid Balance."

Bell, a native of Mountain-home and a chauffeur for many years, has studied automobiles, their troubles and damages they may inflict when not operating properly. His job as chauffeur gave him first hand knowledge of the subject.

The "Fluid Balance" is not yet being manufactured, but when it is it will merely fit inside the hub cap or wheel cover. It will probably be applied only to the front wheels, although all four wheels may be equipped with the invention.

Motion

The balancing unit, which is a chemical filled "ring" inside the hub cap, actually balances the wheels while the car is running.

Bell first earned notice when he was given a "patent pending" certificate in 1954. The next year he was awarded patent number 2,687, 918 on his "Fluid Balance."

The invention is adaptable to any type wheel and the chemical solution includes an anti-freeze, which keeps the unit from freezing during the winter. It is good for the life of the automobile.

Wheels out of balance have long been a headache for car owners, manufacturers and mechanics.

Bell, who is an inventor by hobby, is currently working on several other inventions. He is also waiting for at least two other patents on inventions.

Each of the patents is geared to promote safety in the modern automobile.

Industrial Drive At $14,247 Mark

THE INDUSTRIAL development fund of Monroe County Industries, Inc., moved to within $753 of its $15,000 goal yesterday with contributions of $325 reported.

Largest single contribution was a $125 check from an anonymous donor. Others included Local 559, Barbers Union, $100 and $25 each from Charles J. Gordon, Esso station; Jones Motor Co., Inc., Spring City; Boston Candy Kitchen and "A friend."

Purpose

The $14,247 in the drive now is $14,247. Its purpose is to provide funds for purchase of a 15-acre plot of land in which two outside industries have shown an interest.

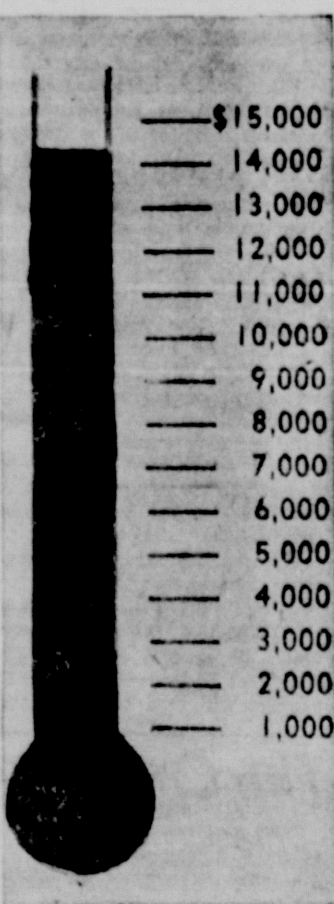

Receipts from sale of the land to the industries will be used to start a revolving fund to attract other industries to the area.

Contributions to the drive should be addressed to the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce.

The contributions from the barbers was accompanied by the following letter:

"Dear Sirs:

Our barbers union consists of only seven shops and 16 members at present. On Sunday and Monday, October 13th and 14th, we are being hosts to a State Convention to be held in the Penn-Stroud Hotel. We got out a souvenir book and due to the generosity of our many advertisers we are proud to send our check of $100, not from our Local's Funds but from the Convention Fund of the Barbers Union Local #559.

Slow Climb

Will you please list it as such. Our wish is that the drive may continue until double your goal is reached.

With best wishes,
Sincerely yours,
Russell Swingle,
Secy.-Treas."

Give To Chest Drive, Support 12 Agencies

Monroe County Community Chest yesterday shoved off on what is properly considered the most important undertaking in its history — a campaign to raise $78,243 to be distributed among 12 agencies during 1956.

"Go all the way with one day's pay" is the theme of the drive. Gifts of this amount are proportionate to each family's earnings and are regarded as the fairest means of marshalling united support for the Chest.

This year's campaign goal is five per cent greater than the amount raised last year, due to increased needs in present agencies. Higher costs for services and goods account for the difference.

But, even so, contributors to the Community Chest are receiving more for their money than ever before. A close check on activities of the member agencies is kept by Ethel West, executive secretary of the Chest.

Her records for 1954 show that 8,973 people benefited directly from agencies participating in the Chest, while in 1955 this number had risen to 10,176. This is a gain well above the five per cent increase now being asked.

"Remember your one pledge is divided among 12 agencies for a whole year," declared Clifford L. Cramer, campaign chairman, in opening the drive yesterday.

He explained that the Chest conducts one campaign for 12 appeals, thus reducing campaign and administrative costs, and disburses funds according to needs based on the amount of deficit financing required as indicated by a review of financial reports and audits from the agencies.

Furthermore, the Chest brings about efficient administration of the 12 member agencies, offers maximum service for dollars contributed and, acting as coordinator, helps the agencies to avoid duplication, forming closer agency relationship and saving time and money.

A breakdown of the 12 agencies underscores the wide field of both charitable and non-charitable activities supported by the Chest.

Under health services are found the Visiting Nurse Assn., General Hospital of Monroe County, Child Health Committee, Crippled Children's Society and Guidance Center.

Youth services encompass the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and YMCA. Under care for children is the Children's Aid Society. Welfare and rehabilitation phases are represented by the Salvation Army.

Minor allocations are made to outside agencies which serve Monroe County as part of their work. They are the USO and the Pennsylvania Citizen's Assn.

These are the 12 agencies which are calling upon every citizen of Monroe County for support. They need help. It is our privilege and our duty—as well as our obligation—to see that they get it. Don't fail them.

"Go all the way with one day's pay."

Learning The Hard Way

India seems to be learning about Communism the hard way.

The Indian definition of "neutrality" between East and West has from the start meant a curious leaning toward the East. So immersed in its hatred of Western colonialism were the Indians that they could see no menace in Red tyranny.

This attitude enabled the Communists to gain ground in their country—in the southern state of Kerala. Now India is beginning to learn first hand what it refused to face abroad.

Originally moderate in behavior, the Communists in Kerala now are showing their true colors. They're trying to push through legislation to gain control of all private schools.

Agitators in several sectors are being charged with "systematic sabotage" of important factory installations.

We of the West can't help wondering, now that the Communists have found their way inside the gates, just how to feel toward these "friends of the masses" who devote themselves to clobbering the masses.

The Pennsylvania Story

Bane Of Administration

By Mason Denison

Harriburg—Pressure groups in their oft-times forceful and front-running roles have become the bane of existence of the Leader Administration.

In a sense this is somewhat of a paradox. In view of the fact that pressure groups as such on occasion have been used effectively by the administration in seeking certain of its major goals.

Indeed these very groups have been credited in part with helping put across the administration during the gubernatorial balloting of 1954.

Such groups today, on the whole, enjoy more of an open door policy with the present administration than ever before.

Much of this stems from the fact that in the 16 lean years preceding the upsurge of Pennsylvania—as the minority party—pledged and promised virtually everything on the books to any and all comers, if and when they ever moved into office.

This in itself is by no means unusual. Out-of-office Republicans at the moment are following a similar line in a bid for a return to the gubernatorial pew in 1958.

The difference insofar as the Keystone State GOP is concerned is that they're taking a page from the Democratic woes of the past three years and are cautiously tempering any pie-in-the-sky vote gathering promises.

The history of pressure group activities goes back a number of years but is important to the contemporary scene.

In fact pressure groups today are perhaps too often responsible for actually changing the scene or at least a part of it.

In pre-Leader Administration years such groups or organizations almost invariably were given short shrift by the Republican hierarchy, both politically and administratively.

They were classified roughly simply as thorns that pricked the GOP hide.

As a result these groups never blossomed in any great degree. Financially most were a complete flop.

Since the advent of the more sympathetic Leader Administration these groups have flourished as amply evidenced by their mushrooming organizations and the tremendous number of state headquarters of such groups now firmly entrenched in Harrisburg.

Their erstwhile "acceptance" on Capitol Hill has provided fertile ground for expansion of membership in their respective organization with an accompanying fringe of general support.

Basically these groups fall into two categories: (1) The seeking of statewide goals—social welfare improvement groups are an example of this, and (2) those seeking benefits of local or regional nature—highway relocation groups illustrate this type.

However there is a transition from three years ago when the administration was in its early morning flush.

Although Administration officials refuse to publicly admit it, the once wide open door is now being edged closed in an effort to stave off the multitude of growing pressures.

The heyday of the pressure group on the present administration at least is gradually waning. Many have found it difficult if not impossible in some cases to gain audience with gubernatorial aides and department heads.

The net result has been a slackening of their once vibrant support of the administration and in some cases outright castigation. Although these groups actually "never had it so good" they have indeed become the bane of the administration.

Robert S. Allen Reports . . .

Election In Mexico

By Bill Shanahan
Editor, Mexico City News
Mexico City, Sept. 24 — The Partido Revolucionario Institucional (PRI) will hold its national convention soon to name the candidate who will probably be Mexico's President for the term 1958-64.

This election next July is highly important to both the U. S. and Mexico, because progress, commerce and strategic planning require cordial relations between the two countries.

Mexico, with a stable government and a flourishing economy, is a recognized leader and spokesman for the powerful Latin American bloc. And as the United States' most populous neighbor, with more than 30,000,000 people, Mexico is her third best customer, in addition to being a major source of raw materials.

Fortunately, the question of friendship will not be an issue in next year's election.

The Partido Revolucionario Institucional (PRI) today is more institutional than revolutionary. Originally a catch-all party of opposition to the 30-year dictatorship of Porfirio Diaz, it had a single slogan: "Effective suffrage; no re-election." However, PRI has shown a remarkable sensitivity to trends, and has broadened its program to meet the problems of a modern nation.

PRI has named every President since 1929, and has reduced recent elections to the status of "two contests" with lopsided majorities.

Once a steam-roller, it is now a band-wagon.

Top-heavy with generals a few years ago, the old soldiers have quietly faded away without revolution, and today in the cabinet only the Defense and Navy ministers are military men. This is truly a remarkable development in Latin America, where "colonelism" ranks "colonialism" as a rewarding factor.

Within the ranks of PRI are such left wingers as former President Lazaro Cardenas, who expropriated the oil companies and broke up the big estates; Fidel Velazquez, head of the biggest union; former President Miguel Aleman, champion of finance and big business; and moderate President Adolfo Ruiz Cortines.

Given these circumstances, the strongest candidate is seldom nominated. The reason is obvious.

If he is a strong exponent of capital, the left wing is wary; and vice versa. Traditionally the outgoing President has much to say about the choice of a successor. But he must reconcile many factions within his party.

Capable observers say Interior Minister Angel Carbal and Labor Minister Adolfo Lopez Mateos have the best chance because they have no enemies.

The classes were chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Morrison. The former is the English teacher at Pocono High.

The Junior and Senior Class at Pocono High School recently went to see "South Pacific" at Pocono Playhouse.

The classes were chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Morrison. The former is the English teacher at Pocono High.

Sanford Strunk, White Heron Lake; Wilson Knoebone, Ben Argyle; Ralph Knoebone, Bangor; Barney Reidmiller, Bushkill and Lawrence Dickison, also of Bushkill, attended the Yankee-Red Sox baseball game in New York Sunday.

The trip also turned out to be a sight-seeing journey of the big city.

Richard Mannix, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Mannix, Mountain Road, Delaware Water Gap, is now enrolled at St. Albert's Junior Seminary, Midtown, N. Y.

He is now in the first of 11 years of study for the Roman Catholic Priesthood.

Dick would like to hear from his many friends.

It takes about five quarts of milk to make a pound of American cheddar cheese.

Others highly regarded are Treasury Minister Antonio Carrillo Flores; tough, austere Governor of the Federal District Ernesto Uruchutu, believed to be the personal choice of President Ruiz Cortines; Agriculture Minister Gilberto Flores Munoz; Health Minister Ignacio Morones Prieto, and Economy Minister Gilberto Loyo.

The PRI nominee, whoever he may be, is expected to continue the austere, hard-money policy of President Ruiz Cortines which has brought Mexico an era of prosperity.

Monetary reserves which stood at 90 million dollars in 1954, are now over 500 millions. A vast highway program has brought new markets and communications to remote areas; iron and steel output and production of electrical energy, sensitive barometers of industrial activity, registered 22 percent and 11 percent increases last year; irrigation projects have reclaimed five millions acres of farmland, making the country self-sufficient in wheat, corn and beans, basic food crops which formerly required imports; investments have reached record levels; and the gross national product has increased at the rate of 10 percent per year.

Nevertheless, the next President will face a number of serious problems involving the United States.

Cotton, coffee and minerals account for about 500 million dollars of Mexico's annual foreign trade. The domestic market cannot absorb this production and the national economy crisis.

At the White Sulphur Springs conference, President Ruiz Cortines spoke of his country's grave concern caused by the dumping of five million bales of U. S. surplus cotton. At the Panama meeting of Presidents, he again insisted, "There must be a more equitable relation between world market prices for raw materials and manufactured products." Mexico took the same theme to the Buenos Aires economic conference in August.

Today Mexico is spearheading Latin American opposition to a lead-zinc import tax, and is seeking Central American support for a minimum export price for mild coffee.

Lack of investment capital continues to be one of the major problems facing industry, and the next administration undoubtedly will encourage foreign investment in "new and necessary industries."

The problem of Mexican migrant labor in the United States, territorial water disputes caused by U. S. shrimpers operating near the Mexican coast, and implementing the recently signed bilateral air pact, will also occupy the attention of the new administration.

Jobs For Those Over 65

John F. Hill, Editor
The Daily Record
Dear Sir:

First I want to congratulate all those concerned with the grand success that the Teen-Age Employment Bureau has turned out to be. It has filled a real need and become a necessary part of our community.

But wait a minute! There is another side to that coin. How about those over 65? Many of these older people, like most of the teen-agers, have a basic security. There is the Social Security payment. But in many, many cases that is absolutely all there is.

And being over 65 does not suddenly make a woman stop wanting a new hat once in a while. Or stop making a man want steak instead of hamburger occasionally.

So why not give these older people the chance they long for? The chance to earn the small bit of money that makes the difference between living and just existing?

The law does not allow these older people to earn much. They can't have full-time work, even though they are willing and able. But they can work part-time. And often they need part-time work.

These older people have not suddenly lost the skills and knowledge gained in 65 years of living. Many of them are well and capable of valuable contributions to society.

There are many who need their services. But there must be some place where the needs can be stated and the skills matched to the needs.

Grandmas are fine baby sitters. Especially with very tiny children, and in the daytime when mothers are in school.

And have you ever had a sick child and wished there were someone who could come in and amuse him just long enough for you to catch a quick nap or get the rest of the house in order?

Modern grandmas can often do part-time office work, nursing, selling, teaching, a thousand things.

Grandfathers are wonderful people too. They can do most of the things Grandmothers can do and much more. How about a little bit of carpentry work that seems too trivial to call a regular carpenter? Hubby is just too busy. What to do? Call on Grandfather, he would love it.

Do you need someone to give Junior that little extra help that the regular teachers just can't give him? I'll bet there is a retired teacher who could do a bang-up job and would be delighted at the whole idea.

Surveys have shown over and over that these older people are good men and women. Most of them have a serenity and wisdom that make them a delight to deal with.

But they have a real need for what money they are allowed to earn to supplement the Social Security payments. And they need the pride of knowing our need for them. We need them, their skills and their wisdom. Let's set up a place where both their needs and ours can meet and be fulfilled. How about it? Is anyone interested?

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Mankind In Fragments

One of the effects of the upsurge of nationalism throughout the world is that human race is being broken into fragments which are constantly becoming smaller. The end of this process is not in sight. One of the immediate and disastrous effects of intensive nationalism is the shattering of nationalistic and racial hatred.

For instance the Malayan Federation could not include Singapore, which is the most important city of Malaya, because Singapore is at least three-quarters Chinese. The Chinese of Singapore, like all Chinese anywhere, are divided into three essential groups, the supporters of Chiang-Kai-Shek, the supporters of the Chinese Communists, and those who still believe that a "third force" could develop on the mainland of China. These groups hate each other, fight constantly and intrigue for domination. But in Singapore they might combine against the Malays and the British.

Similarly on the island of Cyprus, nationalism is developing an increasingly unpleasant situation. One might say that a Cypriot is a person who comes from Cyprus, which is 40 miles from Turkey and 600 miles from Greece. But that is strikingly over-simplified. A Cypriot may regard himself as a Greek or a Turk, depending upon which language he speaks or which church he attends.

Racially, he may descend from anywhere or any race, from the Hittites to the Greeks to the Egyptians, to the Crusaders from northern Europe. But today the Greek-speaking Cypriot has been stirred up to believe that it is his destiny to belong to Greece, and the Turkish-speaking Cypriot believes that he must belong to Turkey, and over this island, which is no longer strategically important because of the airplane could come a war involving the entire human race.

Such great land empires as Soviet Russia, Red China, and India comprise many races and nationalities and varieties of languages and these are beginning to assert themselves in varying degrees of autonomy. For instance, the Communist state of Kerala in India is composed of layers of differing peoples who are unlike other peoples of India and who found in Communism self-expression which if it spreads throughout southern India could cause havoc in that country.

Arab nationalism, according to the Arabs, is something that has always existed, which cannot be so because the Arabs have not always existed as a separate and distinct nation. Is Egypt an Arabic country? Look at the history of Egypt from the Hyksos to the present day and see what a mixture of peoples have lived in, conquered or been conquered in that country. Who were the Macedonians who set up Ptolemaic Egypt? Were they Greeks? Were they Semites who all once lived in Macedonia?

If they were Greeks, what kind of Greeks were they, for there were many kinds of Greeks from the ancient Minotaur to the rugged Spartans? If you like arguments of this kind, you can spend a lifetime on this subject. Or if you have the time, you can wax most enthusiastic trying to explain how an Illyrian becomes an Albanian and a Modern Albanian a satellite of the atheistic Kremlin.

Even in the United States, the racial problem as between whites and negroes, as between whites and Mexicans, as between whites and Puerto Ricans intensifies each year and is now, in some stages, climactic. The rule that all men are equal raises the question as to what is meant by all men and what is meant by equal.

In fact, to deal with this problem the White House tried to turn the FBI into a national police force which would have been a national calamity were not J. Edgar Hoover alert to the danger of unconstitutional means to achieve constitutional ends.

And because we are of such a variety of origins, we have brought into our lives all the quarrels and disagreements and over-emphasis of Europe, Asia and Africa to say nothing of our own smaller and only justifiable minority, the wards of the nation, the American Indian.

And so we have reached that stage in civilization when we must ask who is better than whom and how long we were your ancestors civilized before mine were—which is an absolutely and conclusively silly question because mine were the first to be civilized and if you don't believe it read the Book of Genesis which says so. So there!

No Schedule Planned For Construction Of Second Bridge

Lawler Writes Motor Club Of Situation

NO SCHEDULE has been set up for construction of a second bridge between Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg, the state secretary of highways advised the Pocono Mountains Motor Club in a letter read at last night's meeting of the club.

Secretary Joseph J. Lawler said the Department of Highways "is aware of the present congested traffic situation in the Stroudsburg area. However, we do believe this condition will be greatly relieved when the new four-lane Main St. Bridge is built."

The state official further disclosed that "a study of the requirements cannot be made until the locations of the Keystone Shortway and of the Route 611 by-pass have been determined."

Lawler's letter was in reply to a request authorized by the motor club board at its last meeting. The directors had requested the state to expedite construction of the bridge which, with approaches, would extend from Lenox Ave., East Stroudsburg, over Broadheads Creek to Fifth St., Stroudsburg.

A bill authorizing such construction was introduced by Rep. Hanford L. Cleveland (R-Monroe) at the last session of the General Assembly. It was passed by both houses, approved by Gov. George M. Leader, and referred to the Highway Department for further action.

In another communication, Secretary Lawler informed the motor club that plans for the reconstruction of Route 115 in the Wind Gap-Saylorsburg area are being prepared by Consultant Turnpike Engineers Inc. The secretary added: "We anticipate the plans will be completed in October."

Women Voters To Resume Work

ON MONDAY, Sept. 30 the first meeting of the local League of Women Voters will be held.

It will take place in the Stroudsburg YMCA. And it will be the public beginning of an organization which—still in its provisional stage hereabouts—is the result of careful, consistent planning.

The League actually had its "start" more than a year ago. It was then a small group of women who took the first steps toward eventual formal organization of the chapter.

After a series of group meetings with a State League representative, the local unit was granted a "provisional" charter. This means that it is "on trial" for a one-year period. During that time it will be allowed to make its initial broad-scale study.

That first study will be on Pennsylvania's Constitution and the need for proposed changes in it. Mrs. Ennis Davis, chairman of the State legislative agenda, will preside at the local meeting. The guest speaker will be a State League of Women Voters officer.

Formation of the local League will mark the first time a woman's group devoted expressly to the "promotion of political responsibility through informed and active participation of citizens in government" has been active in Monroe County.

It is for this purpose that the national League of Women Voters came into existence, according to its own charter. There are now more than 126,000 members of the 1,000 Leagues in the U.S., Alaska, Hawaii and the District of Columbia.

Support

Financial support for the Leagues comes from membership dues (about 33 percent of the total needed) and from public-spirited, non-partisan organizations or citizens outside the League.

What is the League of Women Voters? Logically enough, it is just what its name implies, first of all: It is an organization made up of women who are determined that all citizens exercise their privilege to vote in all matters affecting government and the populace. It is a direct outgrowth of the National American Woman Suffrage Association. The League was formed in 1920 after the 19th amendment gave women voting privileges, an amendment which the NAWSA had actively and ardently sought.

At first the League set about its job of "educating the public to its own responsibility in government" tentatively, testing the ground on which it stood. As the role of women in politics gradually emerged and formed a new clarity, the League intensified its own research into national, state and local governmental problems.

Beginning with a few local chapters, it rapidly grew until every State was represented on its rolls. As its unit numbers grew, its scope was also broadened.

By the early 1940s, League chapters all across the nation were engaged in a vast and intricately personalized drive to "get out the vote." Election returns in municipalities, counties and States where the League became active told the story better than any horn-blowing the organization itself could have done.

In nearly all areas, the story was basically the same: A sharp rise in the number of women voters going to the polls was being felt.

But the League had never intended to concentrate its persuasion on women alone. It was designed as a means of educating ALL voters—men and women. In some areas, as it turned out, the women listened to the women—and the men chose not to.

The list of League accomplishments began to build steadily. In Des Moines, Iowa, where school boards had operated in closed session for years, the League carried on a hard, often defeated drive to force boards to open their meetings to the public. It finally met with success. And nearly everyone agreed that the League—aided only by the press and radio—had been responsible.

Since those early days, the League's national program has turned from purely "local" matters to the complexities of international trade and the governments of nations as they are related in the modern world. Here, again, the accent is on education.

That's the primary aim of Leagues all over the nation: To let people learn about themselves and their government—together—in the belief that once they've learned they'll vote wisely.

on his car," referring to the vehicle in which the students were riding.

Miss Zeiter had testified that the car in which the students were riding was proceeding "at a terrific rate of speed" when the crash occurred and he was unable to avoid it.

Barry, who is now employed as a shipping clerk by a Philadelphia fruit firm, said he had been driving about two years when the accident occurred.

He testified that he was on the "extra board," not assigned to a regular run, but had been over the route on which the crash occurred approximately a dozen times.

Services Scheduled For Jewish New Year Holidays

SERVICES in the Stroudsburg area for Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year, when Jews join with their brethren throughout the world in the observation of the High Holy Days that begin today at sunset, were announced yesterday. This holiday will end on Friday night.

Temple Israel, on Brown St., in East Stroudsburg, will hold services tonight and Thursday at 6:40 p.m. Thursday and Friday morning services will begin at 7:45 a.m.

On Thursday morning, Rabbi Joshua Soden will preach on "The Shofar," and he will explain the significance of the Ram's Horn which is sounded on this festival. There will also be a children's service at 10 a.m. Thursday. Friday morning, the concluding day of the festival, Rabbi Soden will speak on "Standard for Happy Living." Cantor Morris Mulraab of New York will chart the traditional liturgy. Rabbi Soden will conduct the responsive and Union readings as well as interpret the special holiday prayers.

This religious New Year is termed by the Jews the 5,718th, since the beginning of creation and marks a period of contrition after religious self-examination.

The front of the bus had swung back into the right hand lane of traffic at the time of the accident.

Following cross-examination, Judge Davis asked Barry how fast the second car was going at the time he attempted to pass it. Barry estimated its speed at about 20 to 25 miles an hour.

Davis then asked Barry how far he could see ahead at that time, to which Barry replied "well over 200 feet." When Davis asked for a more specific figure, Barry said about 250 feet.

Hansen in his summary contended that Barry was committing an unlawful act by being in the left lane of traffic, attempting to pass, when he could not see for a sufficient distance.

Also testifying briefly for the defense was Frank J. McDonald, Jr., Clarks Green, a member of McDonald and Co., Wilkes-Barre, an insurance investigating firm.

He testified that he interviewed Louis Parrot of Kings-ton, one of the drivers of the cars the bus attempted to pass at his home on Feb. 9, 10 days after the accident and took a statement from him regarding the crash.

He testified that he was on the "extra board," not assigned to a regular run, but had been over the route on which the crash occurred approximately a dozen times.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Now there was a day to wear new Fall clothes—or in my case old Fall clothes. After all this complaining about warm—oh summer ones, it should have been a pleasure except—

Well, like mashed potatoes and gravy, or pan cakes and syrup, or writing paper and envelopes—it didn't come out even. It had to be something brown because a tan hat is the only hat that seems to have survived the summer, but whatever politergist it is that wears out shoes during their hibernating period had sure done a job on my brown ones.

Oh well, shoes for the most part are under tables or desks or you can twine them around chair legs but a hat you have to wear in full view, so brown it was.

However, the programs I listened to were interesting enough to make me forget shoes—and hat. Jeannette Batory certainly presides at a meeting with zip, and the Crippled Children's program was over before most programs would have started.

But it lasted long enough for me to admire Mrs. Harry Adams crocheted work, including tea cozies for vacuum bottles and to more than admire Mrs. Adams herself for her work through the years. Of course I think Helen Webb is pretty special, too, and makes one of the most gracious peddlers of crocheted work you ever saw.

Later in the afternoon, I heard Dr. Brown give some fascinating bits of history, including that bit about the church fathers giving up what is now the heart of Stroudsburg rather than cancel out Mrs. Hollingshead's pledge of $50 a year and four cords of wood.

In speaking of the church socials of earlier years, he added rather wistfully, "We all knew each other much better, then," and it is true that in bigness we often lose closeness. Which is why women's church societies all over the country, having combined into one big organization, are now dividing up into small circles within the big organization, I suppose.

Dr. Robert Brown Compiles Church History of Women

A glimpse into the past of the Women's Societies of the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church and a preview of coming responsibilities marked the two-part program at the Silver Tea of the Women's Assn. held at the church yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Robert Brown, who has compiled a history of the work of the women of the church, outlined some of his findings in searching old minute books and probing the memories of older members of the congregation.

Offered Heart of Town

Eight women and three men composed the entire membership of the church at its organization August 15, 1827, he reported. One of the earliest incidents involving women was the offer of Mrs. Hollingshead to give to the church all that land now bordered by Main, Sixth, Seventh and Ann Sts. If her annual subscription of $50 a year and four cords of wood be cancelled. The offer was turned down, he reported.

The work of the session in former years, he said, was far different than today. Much of the old minutes were concerned with disciplinary action against members who were irregular in attendance or lax in Sunday observance.

Ladies Relief Society

The Ladies' Aid Society, organized sometime before 1870, always played an active role, providing for the banquets, as well as financial help. Through its Ladies' Relief Society it cared for the ill and those in trouble. It bought umbrella racks and folding tables, planned church socials and sponsored young people's organization.

Among such active groups were the Excelsior Society which gave plays, the Little Reapers, the Little Gleaners, the Christian Endeavor Society, and the Junior Christian Endeavor.

The Missionary Society, organized in 1893, divided into the Foreign Missionary Society and the Home Missionary Society. He said, and also sponsored its Junior organization, the Mission Guild.

The two missionary societies were merged in 1921, he said, and the Ladies Aid and the Missionary Society in 1935.

Two outstanding women he mentioned were Mrs. S. B. Holmes, the only woman to serve as an elder of the church; and the late Mrs. W. B. Easton, only woman to serve as Sunday school superintendent.

Play Is Given

The second half of the program was a play "The Pink Slip of Paper" when the importance of achieving the national Goals for the Year were stressed in dramatic form in the field off hospitals, schools, medical and mission work.

Mrs. Claude Leister presided at the business meeting. The association voted to submit the name of Mrs. Elton Denning as their nominee for Presidential delegate to the national convention at Purdue in 1958.

Announcement was also made of Fall Presbyterials at Summit Hill, October 3, when three local young people: Eloise Cohen, Sandra Wakefield and Carol Willhoite will be on the program; and at Catsaqua on October 4.

Nominations were read by Mrs. Arlington Williams, and revised by-laws were presented by Mrs. Arthur Ifft. Both will be acted upon at the October meeting.

The Marie Capelli Circle, Mrs. John Sinclair, leader, served tea.

I have just finished reading "Gypsy", a book published recently by Harper & Brothers, New York. It is the autobiography of Gypsy Rose Lee. Never did I think I would be mentioning this fact in a Shopper column... but there is actually no reason not to do so, for the book is written with a great deal of humor, and it does take one behind the scenes in a phase of show business that has produced many great stars and comedians for the American stage and motion picture.

Gypsy Rose Lee had a miserable life, judged by the standards of most average middle class persons. Her sister, Baby June (now June Haver of motion pictures, stage and TV) was the star of the family show that kept the youngsters tramping dingy theatres across the country from the time they were old enough to toddle. "Mother" was the press agent... conniver... and manager of the little group, which enlisted the services of other boys and girls, who worked for experience only, plus board. Father had exited from the family via the divorce courts, when the youngsters were two and a half and four years of age.

In her book, Miss Lee describes the ups and downs of the small band of nomads... the dingy hotel rooms and sometimes dingier characters that had to be endured... the gradual decline of vaudeville... and her sudden rise to stardom at an age when most pretty girls, like herself, were still in school. We see her as a youngster, hanging around book stores, reading—and occasionally buying—sonnets... smuggling her gradually acquired library into the already crowded trunks, the way other children might sneak an extra piece of forbidden chocolate. And we close the book, marveling that after all her experiences, she can still be grateful for the type of childhood she had... as we heard her on Edward R. Murrow's "Person to Person," with the polish and adeptness which were self-taught under such adverse conditions.

I personally admire Gypsy Rose Lee very much, and for a very excellent reason. I know beyond doubt that she has many of the finest instincts of a truly grand and sensitive lady. It was just ten years ago that I encountered her in a restaurant in New York State, not too far from Schenectady where I was living at the time. I remember the date well, for my little daughter, who was ten just the other day, was happily anticipated at the time.

The two boys, their father, and myself were taking a short trip and had stopped to dine in a pretty dining room that was crowded. It was hot... I was uncomfortable... the children were restless as young children are when they've been confined too long to a car. We had to stand, waiting for a table... and the boys' exuberance made me nervous.

After a few minutes, an attractive, friendly woman rose from one of the booths where she was seated with her small son, and approached me. "Please take my table," she said. "I know how you must feel, standing here and I can have my dessert and coffee here by the cash register." I was grateful... but demurred at first. However, she insisted, and coaxing her son from the booth, she stood there, sipping her coffee while he busied himself with his milk.

She was wearing slacks... her head was wound in a scarf. She wore no makeup, but was most attractive, with a self-assurance and grace that were most charming. "I have the feeling I've seen her somewhere before," I said, and my husband agreed. Later she said goodbye to us, wished me well with our family, and went away, driving off in a trailer.

One Sunday, soon after, I opened the newspaper to see a big picture of the same trailer... the same woman... and the same child. Gypsy Rose Lee had just returned with her son, Erik, to New York after nightclub appearances out west. "I knew I had seen her or her picture somewhere before," I remarked, handing the paper to my husband. "And isn't it strange?—in all of that crowded dining room, she was the only woman who realized how conspicuous I felt standing there, and how miserable I was."

That's one reason I wanted to read Gypsy Rose Lee's autobiography. It is amusing... but it doesn't do her justice as the fine person I encountered.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Now there was a day to wear new Fall clothes—or in my case old Fall clothes. After all this complaining about worn-out summer ones, it should have been a pleasure except—

Well, like mashed potatoes and gravy, or pan cakes and syrup, or writing paper and envelopes—it didn't come out even. It had to be something brown because a tan hat is the only hat that seems to have survived the summer, but whatever politergists it is that wears out shoes during their hibernating period had sure done a job on my brown ones.

Oh well, shoes for the most part are under tables or desks or you can twine them around chair legs but a hat you have to wear in full view, so brown it was.

However, the programs I listened to were interesting enough to make me forget shoes—and hat. Jeannette Batory certainly presents at a meeting with zip, and the Crippled Children's program was over before most programs would have started.

But it lasted long enough for me to admire Mrs. Harry Adams crocheted work, including tea cozies for vacuum bottles and to more than admire Mrs. Adams herself for her work through the years. Of course I think Helen Webb is pretty special, too, and makes one of the most gracious peddlers of crocheted work you ever saw.

Later in the afternoon, I heard Dr. Brown give some fascinating bits of history, including that bit about the church fathers giving up what is now the heart of Stroudsburg rather than cancel out of Mrs. Hollingshead's pledge of $50 a year and four cords of wood.

In speaking of the church socials of earlier years, he added rather wistfully, "We all knew each other much better, then," and it is true that in bigness we often lose closeness. Which is why women's church societies all over the country, having combined into one big organization, are now dividing up into small circles within the big organization, I suppose.

Miss Ellanore Barber Wed In Christ Hamilton Church

Miss Ellanore Barber, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Barber, Stroudsburg RD 1, and George B. Barber of Milwaukee, Wis., became the bride of Robert C. Freeman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Freeman, of Park Ridge, Ill., at 2 o'clock on Saturday afternoon at Christ Ev. Lutheran Church, Hamilton Square.

The double ring nuptial rites were performed by Rev. Robert Zuch, pastor. Mrs. Joseph Hartman at the console of the organ played a prelude of nuptial melodies. The altar and chancel were decorated with white gladioli and potted palms.

The bride, given in marriage by her grandfather, Harry H. Barber, wore a waltz-length gown of imported Alencon lace over slipper satin with a matching cap to hold her elbow length veil. She carried a white Bible which belonged to her grandmother, Mrs. Charles Haney, with a white orchid and streamers caught with baby mums.

Miss Adrienne Murphy of Ocean City, Md., was maid of honor. She wore a waltz-length gown of coral chiffon with a matching braided satin headpiece and carried a cascade bouquet of white Fuji mums.

Carl Fabin of New York City, was best man. Ushers were George Kitchen, Saylorsburg, and Arthur Dengler of Ithaca, N.Y.

After a honeymoon at the shore, Mr. and Mrs. Freeman will be at home at Quarry Road, Ithaca, N.Y.

The Wyckoff Shopper

"the friendly store"
Wyckoff

I have just finished reading "Gypsy", a book published recently by Harper & Brothers, New York. It is the autobiography of Gypsy Rose Lee. Never did I think I would be mentioning this fact in a Shopper column ... but there is actually no reason not to do so, for the book is written with a great deal of humor, and it does take one behind the scenes in a phase of show business that has produced many great stars and comedians for the American stage and motion picture.

Gypsy Rose Lee had a miserable life, judged by the standards of most average middle class persons. Her sister, Baby Jane (now June Haver) of motion pictures, stage and TV) was the star of the family show that kept the youngsters trouping dingy theatres across the country from the time they were old enough to toddle. "Mother" was the press agent ... conniver ... and manager of the little group, which enlisted the services of other boys and girls, who worked for experience only, plus board. Father had exited from the family via the divorce courts, when the youngsters were two and a half and four years of age.

In her book, Miss Lee describes the ups and downs of the small hand of nomads ... the dingy hotel rooms and sometimes dingier characters that had to be endured ... the gradual decline of vaudeville ... and her sudden rise to stardom at an age when most pretty girls, like herself, were still in school. We see her as a youngster, hanging around book stores, reading—and occasionally buying—sonnets ... smuggling her gradually acquired library into the already crowded trunks, the way other children might sneak an extra piece of forbidden chocolate. And we close the book, marveling that, after all her experiences, she can still be grateful for the type of childhood she had ... can still bubble over with humor ... and can write (and speak, as we heard her on Edward R. Murrow's "Person to Person," with the polish and adeptness which were self-taught under such adverse conditions.

I personally admire Gypsy Rose Lee very much, and for a very excellent reason. I know beyond doubt that she has many of the finest instincts of a truly grand and sensitive lady. It was just ten years ago that I encountered her in a restaurant in New York State, not too far from Schenectady where I was living at the time. I remember the date well, for my little daughter, who was ten just the other day, was happily anticipated at the time.

The two boys, their father, and myself were taking a short trip and had stopped to dine in a pretty dining room that was crowded. It was hot ... I was uncomfortable ... the children were restless as young children are when they've been confined too long to a car. We had to stand, waiting for a table ... and the boys' exuberance made me nervous.

After a few minutes, an attractive, friendly woman rose from one of the booths where she was seated with her small son, and approached me. "Please take my table," she said. "I know how you must feel, standing here and I can have my dessert and coffee here by the cash register." I was grateful ... but demurred at first. However, she insisted, and, coaxing her son from the booth, she stood there, sipping her coffee while he busied himself with his milk.

She was wearing slacks ... her head was wound in a scarf. She wore no makeup, but was most attractive, with a self-assurance and grace that were most charming. "I have the feeling I've seen her somewhere before," I said, and my husband agreed. Later she said goodbye to us, wished me well with our family, and went away, driving off in a trailer.

One Sunday, soon after, I opened the newspaper to see a big picture of the same trailer ... the same woman ... and the same child. Gypsy Rose Lee had just returned with her son, Erik, to New York after nightclub appearances out west. "I knew I had seen her or her picture somewhere before," I remarked, handing the paper to my husband. "And isn't it strange—in all of that crowded dining room, she was the only woman who realized how conspicuous I felt standing there, and how miserable I was."

That's one reason I wanted to read Gypsy Rose Lee's autobiography. It is amusing ... but it doesn't do her justice as the fine person I encountered.

trade what you don't want, for

The ancient custom of women gathering at the community well to gossip and barter is still popular in many countries. It's also been an American tradition, since colonial days, of trading what you don't need with your neighbor for something you do. "Swaps" is introduced as the Pocono's community well, the one way of reaching out to your more than 35,000 neighbors and telling them what you have and what you'll trade for it. Swap for anything . . . even trading stamps! "Swaps" are not meant to be a money-making venture, and all "Swaps" must be limited to household or personal items . . . strictly person to person . . . and no money must be involved! All "Swaps" will be run daily in the "Articles For Sale" column of the classified section. Look for them, use them, they're yours for less than the cost of a pack of cigarettes.

'Men Only' Signs On Way Out

ADD the local building-material dealer to the list of places from which the "Men Only" sign is disappearing.

An executive of the Goodman Lumber Co., of San Francisco, says women are taking an ever increasing part in the selection of such materials as roofing, siding, windows, and doors — "Anything that has a role in the appearance of a house."

Jack Pelzner, of the Goodman firm, says the reason is that women today are insisting on more colors and textured materials on the outside of their homes as well as on the inside.

"And we've got more colorful materials to offer these days than ever before," says Pelzner. "For instance, it's pretty rare when a woman can't find the color she's looking for in our rack of paint chips or our display of asphalt shingles."

Wives' Help Sought

The Goodman firm, one of the largest building-material dealers in the San Francisco area, encourages husbands to bring their wives when they buy building materials.

"As a team," says Pelzner, "the man and wife can decide more quickly what they want, and they're more likely to be satisfied."

"The husband usually is looking for quality and a product that will be easy to apply or install, while the wife generally is concerned only with appearance. She wants materials that come in colors, or which can be painted to suit her tastes and harmonize with the decor of her home."

Pelzner described an instance in which a man and wife were shopping for new roofing for their home.

Woman Was Right

"The husband took a liking to a soft, green blend of asphalt shingles in a deep tone, but his wife explained that a dark-color roof on their ranch style home would make it look smaller, while a light color would give the house an appearance of height. They selected a light beige and later the husband came back and told me she was right, that the house does seem larger with its new light roof."

Most building-material dealers are welcoming their feminine invasion of their yards and buildings, Pelzner says, and are stocking more and more items appealing to women.

These include shutters and lower doors of ponderosa pine which add texture to home decor, and greater varieties of pine panel doors and wood windows which can be painted or stained to suit the housewives' tastes.

Paint departments have been expanded, wallpaper lines have been added, and many dealers now carry a line of light, specially-designed tools for the home handyman.

Check Windows In Autumn

EARLY Fall is the time to check windows and exterior doors throughout a house to make sure they are functioning efficiently for the winter ahead.

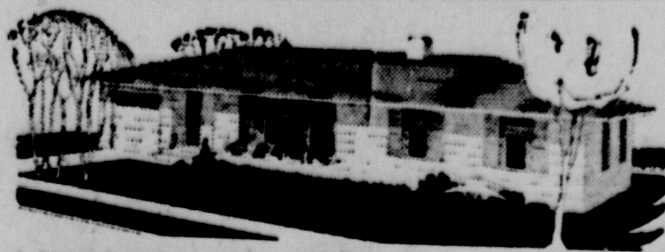

A drafty house and high heating bills often can be traced to windows and doors which do not fit properly, or to faulty weatherstripping.

Inside Baths

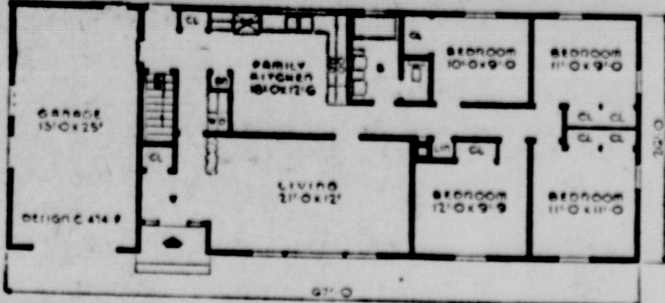

WINDOWLESS bathrooms have been approved by FHA with the provision that they be ventilated. This ventilation can be accomplished with small exhaust fans or hinged skylights built into the roof.

Slots Support Iron

SLOTS shaped like a "V" cut in opposite sides of an empty coffee tin provide an ideal support for a hot soldering iron. The space inside the tin holds rolls of solder and a can of flux.

Insulation Leaks Prove Costly In Modern Homes

A LEAK ANYWHERE in the water supply system usually gets quick attention from the home-owner. He knows that even a slow drip costs money in wasted water.

But another type of leak many home-owners fail to do anything about because they aren't aware of it is the silent, invisible escape of heat through gaps in the insulation barrier.

Heat gets out through these leaks in a steady stream all winter long, wasting costly fuel and causing discomfort zones in the home.

Economy-minded home-owners can find and correct these insulation leaks. A few of the most common areas where leaks are discovered are the wall between the house and an enclosed garage, a garage or porch ceiling with living space above it, and particularly in split levels, the wall between the attic over the lower level and the upper level bedrooms.

Areas in areas which are easy to reach, the homeowner can stop insulation leaks himself with thick batts or blankets of mineral wool. Areas such as a large wall or ceiling which the homeowner suspects is not insulated or has inadequate insulation can be inspected by an insulation contractor and properly insulated by him if necessary.

It's also a good idea to look for small gaps in areas which have been insulated, such as the attic floor. Here batts and blankets should fit snugly against joists and against the wood at the ends of the joists, and there should be no holes. Batts and blankets generally can be pushed in place, and any holes found can be filled with pouring wool available from building-material dealers.

Inside, real estate men say, good housekeeping is essential when a house is up for sale. Clean, neat rooms reflect the habits of the owners which in turn indicate the type of care the house has received.

If painted walls or wallpaper are shabby, interior redecoration probably is in order. A small expenditure for paint, plus some week-end labor with brush and roller can add immeasurably to the resale value of a house.

The plumbing and heating systems should be in good working order, and windows and doors should operate smoothly. A good thing to keep in mind is that the prospective buyer of an older home does not expect everything to be shiny and new, but he does want a house to be in sound, livable condition.

School For Buyers

THE HOME Builders Association of Metropolitan Washington, D. C., conducts a "school for home buyers" where potential home-owners can learn about financing, space for family needs, and other problems of purchasing a house.

Neat Houses Sell Faster On Market

PUT YOURSELF in the position of a prospective buyer if you plan to sell your home in today's highly competitive "older house" market.

Make a careful inspection tour of the house from basement to attic, and the lot from border to border. Just as a house-hunting family would, chances are good that if you, in effect, would "buy your own house," you can put up a "For Sale" sign with reasonable confidence.

A good place to start, according to many experienced real estate brokers, is at the curb, where a prospect gets his first impression. Are the lawn, shrubbery, and flower beds in good shape? If not, prospective buyers might not even stop to look.

Check Roof Carefully

Next, check the exterior of the house, paying special attention to the roof. Faded paint or a cracked piece of siding may not ruin a sale, but an old, shabby roof often will send a prospect scurrying back to his car.

This is because families looking for an older house today generally come forewarned with a list of things to look out for, and a weathered, worn-out roof is one of them. The prospect knows an old roof may be a leaky roof.

A new roof of asphalt shingles in one of many colors available is an excellent selling point for an older home. Besides assuring the prospective owner long-lasting protection from weather, the new asphalt shingles add color and beauty to the entire house.

Inside, real estate men say, good housekeeping is essential when a house is up for sale. Clean, neat rooms reflect the habits of the owners which in turn indicate the type of care the house has received.

If painted walls or wallpaper are shabby, interior redecoration probably is in order. A small expenditure for paint, plus some week-end labor with brush and roller can add immeasurably to the resale value of a house.

The plumbing and heating systems should be in good working order, and windows and doors should operate smoothly. A good thing to keep in mind is that the prospective buyer of an older home does not expect everything to be shiny and new, but he does want a house to be in sound, livable condition.

Eskimo's Igloo Keeps Fuel Bills At Cozy Zero Mark

IF YOU COULD examine an Eskimo's igloo you'd discover a really economical heating system in operation. The igloo is kept warm by body heat and a small oil lamp.

The igloo's thick dome of snow is a good insulator. It seals in the heat given off by the oil lamp and the people and keeps the chill Arctic winds out. The entrance slopes down through the igloo floor before emerging outside. Since warm air rises, heat doesn't escape along this route.

Packing

Home-owners can't very well pack their walls and attic floors with snow or ice cubes, but they can be installed in accessible type of insulation—modern mineral wool. This insulation can be blown into walls and ceilings by experienced contractors with pneumatic equipment, or batts and blankets of mineral wool can be installed in accessible areas by the home-owner.

Insulating engineers recommend at least a 4-inch thickness of insulation in ceilings and 3 inch in walls. All walls and ceilings exposed to winter cold on one side and warmed on the other should be insulated.

For ease of installation, wood windows are made in units, with frame and sash combined, and are equipped with weatherstripping and hardware at the factory.

Check Roof Carefully

Next, check the exterior of the house, paying special attention to the roof. Faded paint or a cracked piece of siding may not ruin a sale, but an old, shabby roof often will send a prospect scurrying back to his car.

This is because families looking for an older house today generally come forewarned with a list of things to look out for, and a weathered, worn-out roof is one of them. The prospect knows an old roof may be a leaky roof.

A new roof of asphalt shingles in one of many colors available is an excellent selling point for an older home. Besides assuring the prospective owner long-lasting protection from weather, the new asphalt shingles add color and beauty to the entire house.

Extra Space Available For Family

EXTRA living space for a growing family can be obtained by adding a pair of dormer windows to an expansion attic. Dormers increase head room and usable floor space in the attic, besides providing needed light and ventilation.

Windows of ponderosa pine are preferred for dormers and for most remodeling since the clear wood can be painted to harmonize with the exterior of the house, and painted or stained to fit the interior color scheme.

For ease of installation, wood windows are made in units, with frame and sash combined, and are equipped with weatherstripping and hardware at the factory.

Clogged Roof Gutters May Be Dangerous

ROOF gutters clogged by falling leaves can be a potential danger to a house. If water standing in the gutters freezes, it can act as a dam which may cause water to back up under the edge of the roof and leak into the house.

Two safeguards against this are:

Steps

1. Keeping gutters clear of leaves and other debris.

2. Properly applied roofing. Recommendations for application of asphalt shingles, the most widely used roofing for homes, call for an extra layer of waterproof material under the shingles at the eaves.

This is an "eaves flashing strip" recommended for use in addition to the usual underlayment, metal drip edge and starter course of shingles, wherever there is danger of freezing temperatures creating ice dams along the eaves. When asphalt shingles are then applied according to specifications, the roof will have a long, trouble-free life.

Light Colors For Shingles

MORE AND more architects and remodeling specialists across the country are specifying white or light-color asphalt shingles for homes because of their heat-reflecting value.

Asphalt shingles in white, silver-gray, or one of the light pastel shades, literally "bounce" much of the sun's heat away instead of permitting it to radiate into the house.

Harry Warner, Reeder's resident during the off-season, helped lift the Charlotte Hornets to the play-off championship of the Class A Sally League.

Warner, former player with the Stroudsburg Poconos of the ex-North Atlantic League, hammered out a three-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning to give Charlotte a 5-3 victory in the finals of the semi-final series with Knoxville. Charlotte trailed 3-1 at the time of Harry's circuit walk.

In the finals, in which Charlotte also grabbed all the marbles, Warner hit another four-ply wallop and drove in two runs. He batted across five in the semi-finals.

It's too bad schedules couldn't have been arranged so local football fans could see both East Stroudsburg Teachers and Stroudsburg High teams in action this week.

As it stands now the Mountaineer diaphanous will take in the Stroudsburg-Emmaus tilt at Gordon Giffels Friday night, and Warrior supporters will view the ESSTC-Ithaca duel at Eastburg Memorial Stadium under the lights—also on Friday.

There is no doubt that both schools will suffer at the gate because of the same night activity. Especially since the handwriting is on the wall that both elevens are better-than-average squads.

Jerry Fried and Johnny Cathers, promoters of the races at the Nazareth Fairgrounds will put on their biggest purse show this Sunday.

The co-promoters announced that the cash prizes for the drivers will hit the $500 mark, with the winner of the 250-lap feature getting $800.

The $2500 in cash in the top figure to be given for one afternoon of stock car races at any track on the Atlantic Seaboard.

BOWLING TIDBITS — Pete Grover was the big prize this week in the Industrial League. Pete, a member of Hughes Printing five, rolled off games of 182, 236 and 215 for a 633 total. The match gave Grover second place in the averages with 182, just five points behind pacesetter Jim Harmon Sr., who owns a 187 norm.

Third in the averages is Ollie Weber with 178, followed by Frank Belli with 174.

The week's "tough luck medal" goes to "Chip" Buehl for leaving the four pin in his bid to make double pinoccio.

L. & B Appliances pounded out a 988 game in the Commercial "B" as Carl Shirk came in with 231 and Russ Dennis posted a 218. The 988 and Shirk's 231 were season highs in the loop.

Hank Baustein and Steve Balic led Al Beseker's rollers in the Monroe Classic League with 596 and 579 respectively. The dinnermen won four points. However, the Square Bar's Frank Laize came up with league high single and triple with 255 and 628.

Harold Keiper posed the parade of bowlers in the Monroe County with a 567. But it took a 541 by the old portside, Dave Beseker to spearhead Al Beseker's "second stringers" to a four-point win which enabled the Diner to keep pace with Keiper's Babe Service Station team for the top berth.

Robinson-Basilio Rematch Probably In June

Fighters Toss Conflicting Reports On Future Status

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP)—A Sugar Ray Robinson-Carmen Basilio rematch in June probably will emerge from the smoke screen of conflicting reports following last night's bitter 15-round brawl at Yankee Stadium.

Basilio, the battle-scarred new middleweight champ, said he was undecided whether to continue fighting as middleweight or welter and wouldn't decide for about 10 days.

In the bitter disappointment of defeat, the 37-year-old Robinson said last night, "I don't know whether I'll ever fight again." He was incommunicado today.

Basilio, wearing a patch over his left eye and eight stitches on his battered brow, visited promoter Jim Norris in the hospital this morning. Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, which is appealing a court order to dissolve, said he would like to stage the return bout.

Although the rematch contracts call for a fight in 30 days at a 30-30 percentage split, it is unlikely that the two men will meet before next summer in a New York or Chicago ball park.

Part of the bitterness that Basilio felt for Robinson in this memorable battle of champions stemmed from Ray's insistence on 45 per cent of the receipts. Basilio, as welter champ and challenger in the 160-pound division, finally had to yield five precious percentage points and settled for 20 per cent.

In Drivers Seat

"We're driving now," said Basilio at an early afternoon news conference. His co-managers, Joe Nitro and Johnny DeJohn, indicated they would be tough to handle in such matters as television and movies which they said were not included in any 30-30 rematch deal.

Official figures, released by the IBC, showed $38,072 paid a gross gate of $56,467 (net $48,417). Robinson's 45 per cent of the gate, radio and theater-TV comes to $48,696 and Basilio's 20 per cent to $21,629. Each also shares in the movie revenue to be determined later. The Internal Revenue Service has filed a notice of levy on $34,000 of Robinson's income to collect anticipatory taxes. Ray also faces two law suits.

"Disappointing"

Ned Irish, executive vice-president of Madison Square Garden, said the theater-TV attendance was "disappointing." Irish said early incomplete figures indicated attendance was about 60 per cent of the 505,000 capacity. On the basis of slightly less than a dollar on each of the 300,000 admissions, the promotion would have less than $300,000 to cover guarantees to the fighters totaling $365,000.

Robinson's "holdout" brought him a $255,000 guarantee and Basilio $110,000. It seems the Milwaukee Braves pennant clinching "killed" the show in Wisconsin.

Harry Markson, managing director of the IBC, said the promotion "lost a bundle" both at the gate and on theater-TV. He said a net gate of about $500,000 was needed to break even.

Fight writers and boxing men still were babbling about last night's fierce contest in which Robinson, crumpling in the middle rounds, staged a brilliant comeback down the stretch. Expert opinion followed along the lines of a quick ringside poll that showed a 2-1 vote in favor of Basilio.

10 Days to Decide

On the matter of choosing between the welter and middle titles, Basilio has Fred Saddy, executive secretary of the National Boxing Assn., on his side. Saddy said Basilio has 10 days in which to make up his mind. Julius Helfand, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, said the law is plain in New York that a man winning a title in a heavier weight class automatically vacates his

Chisox Shade Kansas City Day Too Late

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 24 (AP)—The second-place Chicago White Sox, eliminated from the pennant race last night, reacted with a 16-hit barrage including a home run by Earl Battey and shaded the Kansas City Athletics today 7-6.

Ron Jackson led the Chicago attack with four safeties. Nellie Fox and Battey contributed three apiece.

The Sox scored all of their runs in the first four innings as they hammered George Brunet, Wally Burnette and Harry Taylor.

The Athletics scored three in the first two innings against Bill Fischer but Don Rudolph, rookie lefthander, came on to set them down on one run and four hits through the next six frames.

A's Rally

In the ninth Rudolph gave up a single to Hector Lopez and was removed in favor of Barry Latman. Bob Cerv followed with a pinch home run to put the Athletics within striking distance. Vic Power was hit by a pitch but Joe DeMaestri fouled out and Gus Zernial grounded into a double play.

The A's had one other homer, contributed by Billy Martin.

Area Archers Plan Shoot

POCONO Archery Association completed plans for a championship—senior and junior—club shoot at a meeting at the Towne Room, Stroudsburg, last night.

The organization set Oct. 20 as the date for the intra-club tournament.

Seven new members were enrolled at last night's session, bringing to 65 the membership of the club.

Work Meeting

It also was announced that a work-meeting will be held at the West Main St. Range, Tuesday, starting at 5:30 p. m.

The club accepted an invitation from the Blue Ridge Bowman's Association to participate in a shoot this Sunday, starting at 1:30 p. m.

Jake Silver, president, was in charge of the session.

The Mountaineers' Grid boss particularly lauded the line work of tackle Bill Bolich and tackle-end Bob Kassay. "Those two did a tremendous job," he noted.

He also cited the efforts of guards Captain Dick Reiger, and Al Ettinger, and end Dick Crumsey, Larry Storms and Ed Hermanns.

"All our backs did an adequate job," Whitehead declared. "Especially Ron (Super) Phillips. On two occasions Phillips might have gone all the way for TDs if an extra block was forthcoming."

Whitehead and his assistants Wilmont Smith, George Metroprovid, Vernon Hontz and Charlie Winters will work out the rough spots in the remaining drills this week.

Dodgers Victors In Home 'Finale'

BROOKLYN, Sept. 24 (AP)—Young Danny McDevitt tossed a five-hit shutout tonight as the Brooklyn Dodgers, playing what in all probability was their final game in Ebbets Field, defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 2-0.

There was no "wait 'til next year" wall from the manager crowd of 6,702 at the end of this one. Not with the Dodgers apparently headed for Los Angeles for the 1958 season.

The "new" Dodgers wherever they land, certainly have plans for McDevitt, 24. The kid southpaw gained a 7-4 record with his second shutout after losing three in a row. The rookie fanned nine, walked one and three of the Pirate hits were infield singles.

Both runs were off rookie Bennie Daniels, 25, making his first major league appearance.

Mountaineers Prepare For Green Hornet

STROUDSBURG High's football team went through a long scrimmage session at Gordon Giffels Field yesterday as the Mountaineers set up formations for their clash with Emmaus at Giffels Field Friday night.

Mountaineer head coach John Whitehead, trying to get extra punch in his offensive array against the Green Hornets worked seven backs overtime during the drill.

Whitehead was pleased with the efforts of the boys in his 6-0 win over Lehigh last Friday. "We're green and we expect some mistakes. Against the Indians we made mistakes—fumbles, back in motion and other errors of omission."

Newly Confident

Braves, Haney Out To 'Take' Proud Yanks In World Series

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 24 (AP)—A newly confident Milwaukee team and its suddenly cocky manager, Fred Haney, actually boasted today how they were going to "take" the proud New York Yankees in the World Series. And it is surprising how many baseball-wise people here agree with them.

Frank Lane and Fred Hutchinson, general manager and field manager, respectively of the St. Louis Cardinals, whose desperate drive to overtake the Braves came to a dramatic end last night, are among those who think Milwaukee will humble the American League's practically perennial champions next week.

Each has a different reason for stringing along with the Braves. Hutchinson, a former pitching star with Detroit, thinks pitching, with emphasis on Warren Spahn and Lew Burdette, will win for the Braves. Lane picks the Braves on power.

Pitching Factor

"Pitching is usually the deciding factor in a short series," Hutchinson pointed out. "To my mind, Milwaukee has stronger pitching than New York. I look for Spahn to be the outstanding pitcher in the series. He has the savvy and experience. He's at his best in big games and I believe he has the kind of equipment to stop a team like the Yankees. I wouldn't be surprised if he wins two and maybe three games. I look for Burdette to beat the Yankees at least once."

Lane, somewhat recovered from yesterday's tough loss that forced his Redbirds to settle for second place in the National League race, was voluble in his praise for the Braves.

Hungry Team

Milwaukee will prove as good a series representative as the National League has had in many years," he said. "It is a young team, spirited and hungry. I think the Braves will come into the series with a better mental attitude than any of the Brooklyn teams that faced the Yankees during the past 10 years. That's because the Dodgers, having been beaten by the Yankees so often, looked upon them with unrestrained awe and regarded them as sort of supermen."

"On the material side, the Braves have more power than the Yankees. I know all about Mickey Mantle and Yogi Berra and nobody respects their hitting ability any more than I do. But Mantle is hurting and Berra has not had one of his good years. . . ."

Warren Spahn hurled a five-hitter tonight and posted his 21st victory against 10 losses. It was the seasoned southpaw's 11th victory in his last 13 decisions.

Spahn has pitched 224 victories in his major league career. He has beaten the Cardinals in 47 games, more times than any other active major league hurler has beaten any team.

Cavaliers In Top Shape For Pen Argyl

"WE'RE keeping our fingers crossed and knocking on wood daily, hoping the injury jinx keeps away from our door," Jack Kist head coach of East Stroudsburg High's football eleven said last night.

"We came out of the Slatings game in good condition," the Cavalier mentor noted. "Let's hope it stays that way," he said.

"Our club has very little depth and one injury to a key player will upset our appeal," asserted the man who guides the grid destinies of the high school across the Broadhead River.

Kist and his aides Del Davis, Doug Schoonover and Jim Werkerhiser are preparing the Cavaliers for their second outing of the season. Eastburg meets Pen Argyl on the Green Wave's field, Saturday afternoon.

East Stroudsburg went through a tackling and scrimmage yesterday at Memorial Stadium, with the first and second clubs locking horns.

The Cavaliers will begin to taper off today and wind up Friday with a light signal workout.

Different Series Starting Times

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 24 (AP)—All World Series games in Milwaukee will start at 1 p.m. Central Standard Time. The Series schedule calls for games here Oct. 5, 6 and, if necessary, Oct. 7.

The state operates under Daylight Saving Time during the summer but goes back to Central Standard time Sunday, Sept. 29, the day the National League seasons end.

All games played at Yankee Stadium in New York will start at noon, EST, or 1 p.m., EDT. Daylight Saving Time continues in New York until the last Sunday in October.

If the Series goes seven games, the first, second, sixth and seventh will be played at the Stadium. The opening game is set for Wednesday, Oct. 2.

Ithaca Out End ESSTC Grid Hold

ITHACA, N. Y. — Keyed up by its upset victory over Alfred, the Ithaca College varsity eleven will be attempting Friday night to beat East Stroudsburg away after seven successive seasons of defeats. The Pennsylvanians again pose a threat to the hopes of the Ithacans for they opened their season last week with a 25-0 victory over Millersville (Pa.) State Teachers.

Coach Art Orloske may make a change or two in his lineup of linemen, but will not make a decision until later in the week.

Art Gage of Bennington, Vt., 190-pound center and letterman, has reported for practice, and he may be ready for the East Stroudsburg fray. He was the starter at the center berth last season.

Good Passing

In snapping Alfred's victory streak at 15 covering two seasons, Ithaca showed a good forward passing attack. Perry Noun, junior from Rochester, hit his receiver in four out of six tries, for 72 yards, while Sophomore Bob Ryan of Fair Haven, Vt., struck for four out of four for 72 yards and two touchdowns.

Al Cain of Mt. Vernon, 190-pound sophomore reserve fullback, was credited by Coach Orloske with doing an outstanding job. He also cited Halfback Brian Wade of Massena, who tallied on a pass; Co-capt. Dick Carmean, Lyndhurst, N. J., sophomore halfback; John Fasolino of Tarrytown, N. Y., sophomore end; Charles Boots of Massena and Steve Bodosky of Binghamton, sophomore tackles; Mike Angelo of Amsterdam and Ron Price of Caldwell, N. J., guards; and Halfback Lou Mollan of Clyde, in the defensive backfield.

Ithaca's sophomore-junior aggregation apparently is considerably stronger than the team which represented the college last season.

Williams' 38th Nips Nats, 2-1

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—Ted Williams smashed his 38th home run tonight as Boston defeated Washington, 2-1, behind the five-hit pitching of Frank Sullivan, who won his 14th game.

Williams, who had his streak of reaching base safely 16 straight times broken by Nal Griggs in the first inning when he grounded out, slammed his home run in the fourth inning. It proved the decisive blow of the game. He later struck out and walked.

Oklahoma Reaffirms Belief Of 'Best In Land' Label

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
The Associated Press

THE FIRST MAJOR games of the 1957 season did nothing to alter the general pre-season belief that Oklahoma has the strongest college football team in the land.

Striking with awesome speed and power against a team that had been regarded as the best in the East, the Sooners demolished Pittsburgh 26-0 last Saturday and on their record winning streak to 1 consecutive games.

The result was reflected today in the first Associated Press weekly ranking poll of the new season. Oklahoma had been the pick of the sports writers and broadcasters in the pre-season poll when they rated the teams in the way they expected them to finish. Oklahoma again was an overwhelming choice in the first weekly rating, based on what the teams have shown so far in the new season.

Only nine of 74 experts participating in the weekly voting failed to put the mighty Sooners on top of the list. Seven of those picked Oklahoma second. One non-conformist wouldn't give Duke University a higher ranking than 10th and another cast a vote for fifth place.

Texas A&M, rated second in the pre-season balloting, retained that place. Michigan State, ranked fourth, drew four of the nine first place votes that didn't go to Oklahoma. Duke received two and Navy, Minnesota and Iowa one each.

In the point scoring, on the basis of 10 points for each first place vote, nine for second, etc., down to one for 10th, Oklahoma received 720 points to 460 for the Texas Aggies.

Texas A&M had a stern opening opponent in Maryland, but came through at the finish in the first round for a 21-13 victory.

Georgia Tech, an impressive 13-0 winner over Kentucky, moved up to third in the first weekly ratings, displacing Michigan State, and Navy, which gave Boston College a 46-6 battering, advanced to fifth. Tech and Navy had been rated 11th and 12th in the pre-season voting.

Others in the first 10 this week were Minnesota, Duke, Tennessee, Oregon State and Michigan. Duke caught the eyes of the voters by whipping South Carolina 26-14 and Oregon State thumped Southern California 20-0. The Big 10 teams and Tennessee don't open their season until next Saturday.

Baylor, Pitt and Iowa, which had received pre-season ratings in the first 10, dropped to the second group as three of last Saturday's winners mustered more voting strength. Pitt, in spite of being badly mauled by Oklahoma, still was regarded highly enough to get a tie with Stanford for 16th place.

Oklahoma's schedule calls for a week of idleness after its opening victory, but the others in the top 10 all will be in action, most of them against first-rate opposition.

Texas A&M visits Texas Tech for its second game; Georgia Tech plays Southern Methodist (ranked 15th); Duke plays Virginia, and Oregon State meets Kansas. In season openers, Michigan State faces Indiana, Minnesota plays Washington, Tennessee takes on well-regarded Auburn and Michigan visits Southern California.

Besmanhoff Underdog In Durelle Bout

DETROIT, Sept. 24 (AP)—Yvon Durelle, the British Empire lightweight champion, who has scored five knockouts in his last seven starts, will go after another one tomorrow night when he faces Willie Besmanhoff in an over-the-weight 10-round bout.

The free-swinging French Canadian has been fighting professionally for seven years but it was a 10-round draw with Tony Anthony in the same Detroit Olympia ring that thrust him into title consideration.

On TV
Tomorrow night's bout against Besmanhoff, who comes from Munich, Germany, will be nationally televised and broadcast—ABC, 9 p.m., EST. It will be scored under Michigan's five-point system.

Durelle is an 11-5 favorite to win Besmanhoff, who has 36 wins in 51 fights.

Durelle is credited with 42 victories in 59 bouts although he claims to have engaged in more than 100 professional bouts.

Eagles Put Pair On Waiver List

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 24 (AP)—The Philadelphia Eagles today announced the release of (Skippy) Giancanelli and Bob Kelly, releasing them from the team's 35-player limit.

Giancanelli, a halfback for five years with the Eagles, was the team's leading ground gainer in 1953, but missed half of last season because of recurring injuries.

Browns Release Three Players

CLEVELAND, Sept. 24 (AP)—The Cleveland Browns today cut quarterback Jim Huluska, fullback Frank Purnell and end Carl Isaacs from the team, bringing the Browns' roster down to the 35-player limit.

One other player must be dropped when halfback Lew Carpenter, obtained in a trade with the Detroit Lions, joins the team on his release from the armed forces.

Bowling Clinic

By BILLY SIXTY
It's Thumb Up!

ASKED what he felt was the major fault with the average bowler Buzz Fazio had this immediate reply: "Over-turning the ball."

Most hook bowlers, he said, are over-anxious to hit the head pin. They don't allow sufficiently for the right-to-left break of the ball.

"Control is a combination of footwork, arm swing and thumb position at ball release," says Fazio. "First, you've got to hold a straight line with your feet if your arm is to hold the swinging groove. Your finish at the foul line has to be identical every time."

How To Finish
How to finish perfect? Be sure that your starting spot, your stance, is exactly the same; that your body and feet are properly set.

Stand correctly, concentrate on having the same amount of ball push-away, and half the battle is won. Next, think of swinging the ball back close to the body. This is important, because only in that way will the arm swing forward just slightly to the right. And with that swing, finished smoothly and with a reach, the arm comes up at release to permit the fingers to apply hook spin—with direction and power, and (see sketch) with the thumb pointed upward.

NHL Bypasses Player Demands

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP)—The National Hockey League failed to take action today on certain demands of the Players Assn. for pension and television benefits.

Clarence Campbell, league president, said the league was powerless to act because two of the clubs, Toronto and Montreal, were unable to participate under Canadian laws.

Green Bay Cuts Five Players

GREEN BAY, Sept. 24 (AP)—The Green Bay Packers released five players today, bringing their squad down to the National Football League limit of 35.

Dropped were Glenn Young of Purdue and Bill Roberts of Dartmouth, halfbacks, and tackle Bill Lucky of Baylor, who were with Green Bay part of last season, and rookies Bill Priatko, a center from Pittsburgh and fullback Ron Quillian of Tulane.

McClellan Expects New Evidence

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) predicted today the Senate Rackets Committee's new hearings on Teamster boss James R. Hoffa will produce evidence of shakedowns and alleged misuse of $100,000 to $150,000 in union funds.

McClellan said the committee will call the first of more than 25 witnesses tomorrow for questioning about the affairs of Hoffa, Midwest boss of the Teamsters and odds-on favorite for election as the union's international president at its convention opening in Miami next Monday.

McClellan said Hoffa himself probably will be called back to the witness stand. In a previous appearance, McClellan accused him of having a conveniently faulty memory about relations with big shot racketeers and their role in boosting Hoffa to power in the union.

Denial

McClellan vigorously denied that he is attempting to upset the apparently well-greased wheels on which Hoffa has been riding toward the presidency as successor to the retiring Dave Beck.

McClellan said the hearings starting tomorrow will deal with a dozen different matters, including an allegation that Hoffa last year loaned nearly a million dollars to Minneapolis department store to help it ride out and recover from a strike by the Retail Clerks Union which the Teamsters Union had supported.

McClellan commented that Benjamin Draxow, executive head of the John W. Thomas department store, has entered a Minneapolis hospital for treatment since being questioned last week by committee investigators.

The chairman added that, "One or two others, after they were interviewed by the staff investigators—have advised us they were not feeling well." He said he will not hesitate to order further inquiry if they contend they are too ill to testify.

JOE PALOOKA, beloved "world's champion", has added his voice to the national campaign to provide job opportunity for physically handicapped workers. "Hire the Handicapped," says Joe, "They're a great investment!" Maj. Gen. Melvin J. Mass, USMC Ret., (left), Chairman of the President's Committee, recently presented the first poster to Vice President Richard Nixon in the Capitol Building, in Washington. Max Leff, cartoonist-author of the Palooka comic strip created by the late Ham Fisher, is shown (right) as the Vice President admires the poster. The Joe Palooka comic strip appears daily in The Daily Record.

Stock Market Regains Small Amount Of Ground

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP)—The stock market today regained some of the ground lost in yesterday's sharp decline but prices on average still remained beneath the previous February low.

Trading was fairly brisk at 2,840,000 shares compared with 3-160,000 yesterday, the year's record. But the comparative slackening of volume tended to dampen the rebound.

Less than a third of yesterday's losses was recouped. Based on the rise in average, an estimated $1-360,000,000 was won back from yesterday's approximate drop of $1-460,000,000 in quoted values.

Average

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose $1.10 to $167.30 with the industrials up $1.70, the rails up $1.00 and the utilities up 20 cents.

Of 1,194 issues traded, 579 rose and 369 fell. The number of new lows for the year was 168, more than halving yesterday's total, while the single new high continued to be Holland Furnace.

Of the 15 most active stocks, 12 rose, 2 fell and one was unchanged.

Bethlehem Steel was the most active stock, off $\frac{1}{4}$ at 41 $\frac{1}{2}$ on 57,300 shares.

On the American Stock Exchange prices also steadied but showed a more irregular pattern. Volume totaled 920,000 shares compared with 1,180,000 yesterday. Corporate bonds declined in the largest volume in more than five months. U. S. Government bonds advanced in over the counter dealings.

Azem Offers Challenge To U.S.

Editor's Note—William L. Ryan, AP foreign news analyst, is on a fact-finding swing through the Middle East where Syrian-U.S. relations have stirred up a crisis. This is the first report from his tour. Ryan's fifth survey in the Middle East.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
DAMASCUS, Sept. 24 (AP)—Khalid Azem, acting defense minister of Syria, challenged the United States today to make direct contact with the Syrian government in an effort to smooth out difficulties between the two nations.

He said Syria would not object if U.S. warships want to pay a courtesy visit to Syrian ports as Soviet warships are going to do.

Azem, who recently paved the way for Soviet aid and trade agreements by a visit to Moscow, expressed these views as U.S. Secretary of State Dulles was telling the United Nations that Soviet bloc arms in Syria are a "growing military danger" to Turkey. Dulles expressed fear of aggression by some of those receiving Moscow's war goods.

Azem declared there is no unusual alarm here.

"Certain defensive measures have been taken by the army," he said, but these "could not be described in any sense as mobilization."

As to the Turkish border, where the Syrians profess to believe NATO maneuvers are being used to pressure them, Azem told this reporter:

"I can say Turkish military concentrations remain the same. There has been no decrease in the concentrations, which, however, Turkey says are mere routine maneuvers which take place every year in this season."

Meanwhile, Soviet and Syrian delegations opened discussions on economic aid for Syria's six-year development plan.

Reliable sources said Russia is ready to offer equipment and plans for a number of projects, including a railway to Latakia and a power and irrigation dam, but that the Syrians will do the work themselves, possibly aided by Egyptian technicians. Previously it had been expected the Russians would provide an army of specialists for the projects.

Amendments May Cause Trouble

HARRISBURG, Sept. 24 (AP)—Approval of two proposed constitutional amendments at the Nov. 5 election would raise some testy points for the 1959 Legislature.

The questions, as they will appear on the ballot, ask:

1. "Shall Article Eight of the Constitution of Pennsylvania be amended by adding a new section authorizing the General Assembly to provide by law for absentee voting by qualified electors who are unavoidably absent from the state or county of their residence, or who are unable to go to their polling places because of illness or physical disability?"

Second

2. "Shall Article Nine of the Constitution of Pennsylvania be amended by adding a new section authorizing the state to create additional bonded indebtedness to the amount of one hundred and fifty million dollars ($150,000,000) for payment of a bonus to veterans of the Korean conflict, the creation of such indebtedness to be contingent upon the enactment by the General Assembly of revenue-raising measures sufficient to amortize the amount borrowed?"

If the public should answer "yes" to the first question, the Legislature would have to draft enabling legislation defining "unavoidably absent," to take an obvious point.

On the bonus, the fundamental consideration for the 1959 Legislature would be how to pay back the $150 million.
